The History of the First United Methodist Church of Pensacola

dates back to 1821 when a mission was established by the Mississippi Conference and the Reverend Alexander Talley was appointed as a missionary to Pensacola. The first services were held on June 2, 1828 in the first building. In the early years the church suffered two fires and an epidemic of yellow fever. In 1881, the first site was sold and a new church built. In the fall of the next year, 1882, an epidemic of yellow fever struck again and took the lives of many people, including the pastor, Reverend C. B. Dubose. The Palafox Street church was completed in 1890, in time to host the annual conference. In 1906, the Palafox Street property was sold and a new site was purchased on Wright Street. It was completed in 1910.
